New Accountant Article Submission Guidelines

Following are the guidelines for submitting an article to New Accountant magazine:

- We accept and publish articles written by college/university professors. As such, the acceptance rate is typically very high as long as the topic is relevant to students.

- Topics must be a subject of interest to college students considering accounting as a major and recent grads and written to be understood by students.

- Word count for the article should be 800 – 1,750 words.

- Articles should be submitted double-spaced in word document format, and should include an intro or abstract page with a brief description of the article, and includes all authors, their accreditation, contact and affiliation information.

- Send all embedded charts, graphs and/or images separately as high resolution image files.

- References may be included at the end; however may not be published due to space constraints.

- Please include high-resolution .jpg headshots of all authors with your submission.

- New Accountant does not peer review articles unless you provide a written request for peer review with your submission.

- Published peer reviewed articles are labeled in the magazine as peer reviewed.

- Submit your article and images via email to Debbie@RENPublishing.com

Upon receipt, an email confirmation will be sent to you. Your article will then be reviewed and slated for publication in an upcoming issue, unless you are otherwise notified by our staff.
